Where your business goes
from drawing board to reality.

INTRODUCTION & TEAM

INTRODUCTION

We appreciate your interest in locating a new business or expanding an existing business in our city. Macomb takes pride in being known as a warm and welcoming community for new and existing businesses, retail shoppers, tourists and residents alike. Home to Western Illinois University, Spoon River College, McDonough District Hospital, several small to medium-sized manufacturers, as well as a vibrant agricultural economy, we offer an excellent school system and a top-rated mass transit system. Macomb has proven to be an excellent place to work, raise a family and, for many, own a business.

Our area economic development agencies, including Macomb Downtown Development, Macomb Area Chamber of Commerce, Macomb Area Economic Development Corporation and Macomb Area Convention and Visitors Bureau work together to ensure our City offers a rich and fertile environment where one can start and grow a business. Together, we realize that there are many components that make up a healthy, vibrant economy. While we each have our own primary mission, we all work together for the good of Macomb and its many businesses and institutions.

Macomb is a vibrant city, rich in history and traditions. Located in West Central Illinois, Macomb boasts an engaged local government that understands the importance of economic development. Our partnerships with our higher education institutions coupled with an outstanding pool of available workers forge the perfect setting for business development and expansion.

This toolkit assists existing and prospective business owners through Macomb's permitting process, funding opportunities, and regional business resources. This guide covers the basics, from finding a location to outlining the permit process. At the end of the toolkit there is a list of available resources, including the City, Chamber of Commerce and other agencies. These contacts are not intended to be all-inclusive or intentionally exclusive of any firm or agency. We hope this guide is useful and we welcome any questions!

Dear Small Business Entrepreneur:

It is with great pleasure that I welcome you to Macomb, IL. Our small businesses are job creators, vital innovators, and the bedrock of our community. We value our entrepreneurs and strive to support our new and growing businesses – your success directly contributes to the health and character of our city. Macomb is a wonderful place to open a business.

Proudly, we are the home of Western Illinois University, Spoon River College, and Macomb Senior High School. In addition to education, Macomb is committed to establishing a high quality of life through its historic downtown, vibrant health sector headed by McDonough District Hospital, many restaurants, retail establishments, and an abundance of parks and cultural events. Macomb is also thrilled to host a prosperous manufacturing sector, most notably Pella, NTN Bower, and Yetter Manufacturing.

We hope you choose Macomb to be the new home of your business. We truly seek to not only be the county seat of McDonough County, a dynamic University town, friendly to both agriculture and industry, but also the place where your business plan goes from drawing board to reality.

My sincere best wishes!

Permit Process

Choosing a location that is already zoned for your proposed business and knowing the city procedures for any zoning issues speeds up the permitting process.

ZONING INFORMATION

The City of Macomb welcomes businesses of all types to locate in the community. However, each must conform to the zoning designation.

Broadly, there are 6 types of zones in Macomb: Residential, Business, Industrial, Office/Institutional, Agricultural, and Mixed Use. Each of these broad categories then has specific Zoning Districts within it – For example, there are 4 different Business & Mixed-Use Zoning Districts. Prior to locating a business, it is important to confirm that the proposed use is allowed at the desired location. Along with this, the City of Macomb is regulated by the 2012 International Building Codes. All owners must follow these codes.

The zone designations in Macomb were made to create and foster an attractive and welcoming city according to the community vision. If you would like to locate a business and you aren't sure if the use is allowed or you would like to explore alternative options, it is strongly suggested that you contact John Bannon, Community Development Coordinator, at (309) 833-4944. For more information about zoning areas in Macomb, please refer to the zoning map on the next page. In addition, if you are exploring zoning options, please allow ample time for the process and begin sooner rather than later. A vast majority of complications and delays can be avoided by selecting a location that allows the proposed business activity.

Zoning Districts, Map A

ALLOWED WITH CURRENT ZONING

Once you have checked with the Office of Community Development that your business is allowed with the current zoning designation, the permitting process is simple in the City of Macomb. All development-related permits will be handled through the Office of Community Development. Input is given regarding zoning, utilities, fire safety, and building code requirements. Meetings take place on an as-needed basis and have greatly reduced the time and effort needed to bring a development project from conceptual stage to implementation. Call the Office of Community Development at (309) 833-4944 to make an appointment. Permits are required and City of Macomb codes must be complied with by any owner or authorized agent who intends to construct, enlarge, alter, repair, move, demolish or change the occupancy or use of a building or structure, or to erect install, enlarge, alter, repair, remove, convert or replace any electrical, gas, mechanical, or plumbing system. The city encourages individuals to do their due diligence and have a private inspection conducted prior to purchasing or leasing an existing commercial building. All new businesses are inspected by the Building Inspector, Plumbing Inspector, and Fire Department prior to opening. Building inspections completed by the city are to ensure that the building meets applicable building codes. City building inspections are not the same as private inspections conducted as part of a real estate transaction.

New Commercial Construction

The owner/authorized agent is required to submit:

- Two sets of construction documents prepared by a registered design professional
- Permit application
- Checklist
- Permit fee

Materials can be sent to the Office of Community Development, 232 E. Jackson Street, Macomb, IL 61455. Forms are available at the Office of Community Development. Allow 4 weeks for processing of the permit. Inspections are conducted through the duration of the project.

Remodeling Existing Property

Contact the Office of Community Development with the scope of work for the remodel/alteration project to see if a permit, construction documents prepared by a registered design professional, and inspection are required.

NOT ALLOWED WITH CURRENT ZONING

If your business is not allowed with the current zoning designation for your site or you want to start a Home Occupation, you can apply for a rezoning or a special use permit. The City of Macomb Community Development staff assists petitioners with instructions and necessary forms. When the rezoning of property is necessary or a special use permit is needed, the petitioner will need to appear before the Planning Commission. The Planning Commission meets on the second and fourth Wednesdays of each month at 5:15PM. Petitioner(s) are responsible for filing their “Request for Zoning Change” or “Application for Special Use” with the City 30 days before the actual meeting takes place. Also, please allow up to 90 days for the entire process for zoning changes or special use permits. Please visit or call the Office of Community Development for rezoning and special use permit application and the list of required documents. Please contact the Office of Community Development prior to preparing paperwork.

Rezoning

If a developer or entrepreneur wishes to change the terms of property use, they may need to go through the process of rezoning the physical property. For instance, if you want to develop your business on the agricultural land around the city, you need to request a rezoning from agricultural to a zoning designation that is consistent with the intended use, such as commercial or industrial. It may also happen that you need to open a business close to a business district but the current zoning designation for that site is residential. In such a case, you can also make a rezoning request.

Special Use Permit

A special use permit allows a developer or entrepreneur to develop a tract of land for a use that does not fall directly under the permitted usage for that specifically zoned area. The existing zoning designations allow a specific set of “by-right” permitted uses. In addition to these regular usages, each zone is usually given a “special uses” section allowing for uses that are just outside the intended uses for that zone. For instance, if you need to start a Home Occupation in a residential neighborhood, you can apply for a special use permit. Examples of special uses may also include schools, funeral homes, hospitals, cemeteries, and other types of land uses which do not fit exactly into the description of residential or commercial uses.

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

Do I need architectural drawings and why?

The State of Illinois Statute, (225 ILCS 305) Illinois Architecture Practice Act requires the involvement of a registered design professional for all new commercial construction projects and for interior alterations which result in life safety or structural changes to the building.

What are life safety or structural changes?

Life safety changes include altering the path of egress from a building; this includes adding or removing interior walls or doors and installing or modifying the fire alarm or suppression systems. Structural changes include modifications to a building's load bearing or support members. Structural element: any lateral or vertical load supporting element of a building or other structure. Examples include beams, joists, columns, lintels, footings, stair stringers, rafters, walls, shear walls, x-bracing, slabs, purlins, basement walls, and retaining walls.

Where can I find zoning ordinances and/or necessary permit forms?

All applicable zoning ordinances and permit forms can be picked up at or mailed from the Office of Community Development.

What is grandfathering as it relates to building codes?

Buildings are to be built to the current adopted edition of the code and are not required to make upgrades as later code editions are adopted. However, any additions, alterations or modifications to an existing building must meet the current adopted edition of the code for the work being done. The unaltered portion of the building is grandfathered from this requirement.

I am looking for a building for my business, how do I know it is suitable?

It is highly recommended to involve a design professional (architect) or a qualified inspection agency to conduct a pre-purchase inspection verifying the general condition of the structure and that the building is code compliant for your proposed use.

“Starting Your Business in Illinois Handbook”

This Small Business Toolkit endeavors to provide potential small business owners with all the local and regional knowledge needed for a successful business in Macomb, IL.

An excellent complementary guide for entrepreneurs is the “Starting Your Business in Illinois Handbook” published by the Office of Entrepreneurship, Innovation, and Technology in the Illinois Department of Commerce in partnership with the Small Business Development Centers of Illinois, First Stop Business Information Center, and the United States Small Business Administration.

While not including any local or regional information, the Handbook looks at entrepreneurship from a state and national level, and is filled with excellent information on corporate structure, taxing law, market analysis, and many of the other factors that do often determine whether a small business is able to make it in the long-run.
